Mission

Encourage. Empower. Equip.

Columbia Union ASI's mission is obey the Holy Spirit's call to encourage, empower and equip Adventist members of Columbia Union to work together to finish God's work in these times in harmony with the Seventh-day Adventist Church.

We offer mission-minded members the opportunity to work supportively and closely with a network of Adventist denominational churches, denominational church leadership, Adventist institutions and other lay ministry leaders.

Our goal is to build a network of volunteers of at least 100 members from each of our constituent conferences serving the church and community.

Service

Connect. Collaborate. Contribute.

Columbia Union ASI serves to connect mission-oriented members to others with similar callings throughout the Columbia Union for the purposes of support, encouragement and fellowship. Moreover, through this network, members will share best practices for effective balance between mission, family and vocation.

Columbia Union ASI is fundamentally designed and determined to work together with all church leadership to support the initiatives of Seventh-day Adventist church. This is done first, by marshalling the human and spiritual resources that the Spirit has made available from within our ASI membership in support of these church-led initiatives. Second, we offer a diverse selection of accountable, vetted and Spirit-initiated services and ministries to church leaders.

Columbia Union ASI remains committed to contributing in meaningful ways, the constructive impact that Christ has on the community at large through the Seventh-day Adventist church's message. By the grace of God we will work together across the Columbia Union to touch lives for Christ here in our communities and around the world.
